Less Time on Inventory Management Means More Time for Proposals, Projects – and Growth

O.J. Laughlin Plumbing Co., Inc., in Valley Park, Mo., just outside St. Louis, has automated inventory ordering, management, and stock levels for over 10 years using Hodes Co.'s Stock Service System. Putting inventory management on autopilot has freed up O.J. Laughlin managers to concentrate on other important business and revenue opportunities such as warehouse expansion, hiring and coaching, and most importantly – new proposals, projects, and service delivery.

T.J. Laughlin, warehouse manager at O.J. Laughlin Plumbing Co., Inc., loves inventory management.

And not just because good inventory management is vital to plumbing tech productivity, and critical to customer satisfaction, and essential for overall company profitability.

It's mainly because he spends so little time on it, and rarely has to troubleshoot it, fix it, or think about it.

"Inventory management is really one of the easiest parts of my job, thanks to the Hodes Stock Service System," T.J. said. "Our parts inventory is tracked, ordered, delivered, and accounted for so I never really have to worry about it. It keeps us perfectly balanced between not too little and not too much."

What's the difference between too little and too much? The biggest concern is not having enough of the right parts on hand to dispatch trucks and techs to the homes and businesses that need them. The next biggest concern: inventory bloat that ties up working capital that could otherwise be used for bills, payroll, and other expenses. Cash is critical and careful use of it can mean the difference between profits and losses.

> "With significant annual growth over the last 10 years, the stakes continue to go up. More growth means more inventory, more expense, and more risk. The Stock Service System is one more insurance policy against understocking, overstocking and misplacement."

, O.J. Laughlin Plumbing Co.

"We've got a long family business tradition here and we want to do everything we can to keep it healthy and growing on our watch," T.J. said. "Hodes helps us do that by controlling expenses, lowering stress, and freeing us up to do other things that drive long-term success like completing more service calls, finding new construction projects, and simply keeping up with it all."

More Growth Means More Inventory – And the Need for More Risk Management

Though O.J. Laughlin has had its Stock Service System in place for more than 10 years now, T.J. says the value of the system becomes greater every year.

"With significant annual growth over the last 10 years, the stakes continue to go up," T.J. said. "More growth means more inventory, more expense, and

PAINS & GAINS

Pains

- O.J. Laughlin Plumbing Co. must keep up with constant growth and expansion.
- New proposals, projects, and facility expansion are high-value tasks that take more time.
- Keeping up with it all is a daily challenge for O.J. Laughlin managers.

Gains

- Hodes Co.'s Stock Service System minimizes time spent on inventory.
- Managers stay focused and spend more time where it's needed most – on new business.
- Guaranteed pricing for six months provides inflation control and one-stop shopping capabilities for speed and convenience.

more risk. The Stock Service System is one more insurance policy against understocking, overstocking and misplacement."

O.J. Laughlin follows the 80/20 rule, automatically tracking and stocking the top 500 SKUs that drive 80 percent of its business. But automated inventory management can work for any-size shop because it's based on the three main pillars of inventory discipline:

Product. The right mix of products – and their minimum and maximum levels – are determined by careful analysis of service calls, replacements, and customer types.

Price. Costs, retail pricing, and appropriate margin levels are consistently tracked, evaluated, and updated.

Place. Bins, labels, and the location within the warehouse keep things organized and readily accessible.

> "The Stock Service Systems is a time machine – it takes care of inventory and gives me back time to work on other high value tasks like proposals, pricing, and special projects."
> - T.J. Laughlin, O.J. Laughlin Plumbing Co.

These fundamentals ensure the operational, functional, and financial needs of the business are being met.

More Time for More Growth – With Built-In Inflation Control

New projects, new people, and several facility expansions have required the whole team at O.J. Laughlin to rise to the challenge. Because T.J. runs the hub of operations – warehouse, storage, and inventory – he's arguably had to adapt most quickly to the increased responsibilities and time demands that come along with new growth opportunities.

"The Stock Service Systems is a time machine – it takes care of inventory and gives me back time to work on other high value tasks like proposals, pricing, and special projects," T.J. said.

With inflation spiking in many areas of the economy, T.J. also likes the fact that pricing within the Stock Service System is locked in for six months at a time. The software also comes with a quick-reference printed catalog that makes it easy for anyone in the shop to look up parts numbers, pricing and pictures when needed.

"Prices are rising fast everywhere but Hodes keeps pricing fair and consistent across the board, in their catalog, in their inventory software, and in their shipping," T.J. said. "We can consolidate our purchases, manage one primary relationship, and know that Hodes has our back."

Stock Service System™

The Easy Button for Inventory Control – And Increased Profits

Lanz Heating, Cooling & Plumbing in Champaign, Illinois, needed a better way to buy, organize and control its parts inventory. Technicians were spending too much time on supply house trips and product costs were higher than expected. The Stock Service System from Hodes Co. has delivered over $100,000 in benefits by reducing inventory levels, cutting supply house trips by 80 percent, and keeping technicians in the field for more service calls.

Bill Yeakel was at his wit's end. He was stumped.

Parts tracking and replenishment at Champaign, Illinois-based Lanz Heating, Cooling & Plumbing had become an ongoing friction spot and cash drain that seemed to be getting worse, no matter how hard he tried to fix it.

Yeakel runs the service group at Lanz. His technicians and their seven service trucks fan out across the Champaign metro area of 200,000-plus residents every day fixing plumbing problems big and small.

The principles of plumbing they know. But parts inventory management is an entirely different kind of challenge.

"Parts inventory has always been difficult to manage, and it was never a priority," said Yeakel. "For years, we've been on an inventory rollercoaster, having too much, not enough, and storage was always a mess. We finally said 'enough.'"

Yeakel teamed up with Lanz inventory manager and service plumber, Alex Conine, to research inventory solutions. They found Hodes Co. and its Stock Service System.

> "In just our first year of using the Stock Service System, we can point to over $100,000 in monetary benefits. We're buying smarter, we're buying less inventory, and we've got consistent margins built in to each product. We've turned a cost center into a healthy profit center for us."

Joe Hodes, the president of Hodes Co., designed the innovative inventory control system after watching too many service companies and contractors waste too much time and money on parts management.

"As a distributor, one of our core areas of expertise is inventory control, it's what we do all day, every day," said Hodes. "It just made sense that we should share our knowledge and help our customers be more successful in this area of their business."

Upgrading to Ease and Simplicity

Yeakel and Conine went to work immediately putting the Stock Service System into action. The Hodes Co. provided everything needed including recommended parts lists, online ordering, and customized shelf label templates.

Pains & Gains

Pains

- The service parts inventory at Lanz Heating, Cooling & Plumbing was too high and operated at break-even or a loss.
- Storage systems in the warehouse were disorganized, making it difficult and time-consuming to find the right parts.
- Technicians were making too many trips back to the supply house, wasting time and reducing service call productivity and profits.

Gains

- Lanz Heating, Cooling & Plumbing's new Stock Service System has automated parts inventory replenishment, control and pricing.
- Department managers and technicians can see and find quickly the parts they need in the warehouse, and Lanz service trucks are better organized.
- Parts inventory spending is down, margins are up, and cash flow has improved by more than $100,000.

"The Stock Service System appealed to us because of its step-by-step instructions," said Conine. "It was easy to understand, get started, and implement."

"And the Hodes team also made us feel welcome and appreciated. Joe Hodes called personally to check on us and make sure we were getting everything we needed. That meant a lot."

The new system has made a big difference. Service parts are better organized in the shop and on the Lanz trucks. Technicians can find what they need more quickly, and they leave the shop for the day knowing they've got what they need for their calls.

> "Hodes Co. is much more than a supplier for us. They are a strategic partner and consultant that is helping us learn, grow, and make meaningful improvements in our business. We couldn't be happier with this relationship and the results."

Parts are stocked based on individual customer purchase histories and broader industry statistics. Past orders, pending orders, and payments can all be accessed 24/7 at the Hodes Co. website.

"Because we've always got our top 500 repair parts in stock, both in the shop, and on our trucks, our technicians can stay in the field longer and handle more calls," said Yeakel. "In the past, technicians were going back to the supply house 2 or 3 times per day, now they only go there 2 or 3 times per week. That is a huge productivity and revenue boosting opportunity for us."

The bottom line results are proving the real value.

"In just our first year of using the Stock Service System, we can point to over $100,000 in monetary benefits," said Yeakel. "We're buying smarter, we're buying less inventory, and we've got consistent margins built in to each product. We've turned a cost center into a healthy profit center for us."

Conine said the overall experience has been smooth and professional. Better inventory levels and profits aren't the only benefits.

"Hodes Co. is much more than a supplier for us," said Conine. "They are a strategic partner and consultant that is helping us learn, grow, and make meaningful improvements in our business. We couldn't be happier with this relationship and the results."
